

SCOLHANDI • Franco-Canadian symposium

scolhandi: disability, education and the politics of inclusion/exclusion

With support from the Auvergne-Rhône-Alpes Region's International Academic and Scientific Cooperation (SCUSI 2018), and of the Cultural and Scientific Services of the Embassy of France in Canada, the research lab Triangle (Ecole normale supérieure de Lyon) and the University of Ottawa, we invite you to participate in this symposium featuring speakers from France and Canada.

The inclusion of students with disabilities in mainstream schools and universities has been an important site of contestation for several decades in many Western countries, but with different modalities depending on the socio-institutional history and the collective capacities to make rights effective. How does this inclusion play out in French-speaking Europe and North America? What do social science approaches to disability tell us about institutional norms and social inequalities, and about their ongoing recomposition, within and beyond the school systems?
