

Institut d'Asie Orientale
Lyon Institute of East Asian Studies
UMR 5062

Séminaire - Institut d'Asie Orientale

Coordination : Arnaud Nanta

Why We Study Japanese Law

24 JANVIER 2025, DE 14h A 15h30, SÉANCE EN VISIOCONFÉRENCE

Inscription préalable sur le site de l'IAO : <https://iao.cnrs.fr/manifestations/seminaire-iao/>

Ruth Effinowicz

Spécialiste du droit japonais, Centre of Expertise on Japan and Senior Research Fellow,
Max Planck Institute for Comparative and International Private Law (Hamburg, Allemagne)

Institut d'Asie Orientale
ENS de Lyon, Site Descartes
15 parvis René-Descartes
69007 Lyon
(Métro B : station Debourg)
Tél : 04.37.37.64.33
Courriel : iao@ens-lyon.fr

Studying and comparing to and with Japanese law from a European perspective is a worthwhile endeavor – but one that is sadly too often neglected. At the height of Japan's economic power, it was relatively easy to justify why Japanese law should be studied and included in comparative research. But what about today? This talk will explore a number of reasons for including the Japanese legal system and its solutions to contemporary challenges in comparative studies – some better known than others, some more compelling than others.

